

Sinclair Broadcasting's decision to force their stations to air "Stolen Honor: Wounds That Never Heal," days before the November 2nd election is outrageous.

It is a clear example of the dangers of media consolidation.

Sinclair should not have access to the public airwaves. Under Sinclair's current (free) license, they are obligated by law to serve the public interest.

In case it is not obvious to you, a blatantly partisan anti-Kerry "documentary," forcibly aired at prime time, days before a national election, is NOT in the public interest.

Sinclair's actions are a perfect example of why we need to strengthen media ownership rules, not weaken them.

I have been disgusted by the FCC-supported homogenization of the media in the last four years, and I am not alone. This behavior HAS to stop, and people like me are going to see to it that it does.

Sincerely,

Kira Od
